katrien van hulle

founder colect

As a graduated interior designer, Katrien Van Hulle has a passion for conceptual design. However, what is conceptual design without being able to elevate the living experience to an art? Reflections that Katrien Van Hulle discussed daily in the late 90's with the people entering her "B" shop for Belgian design furniture in Bruges. The insights Katrien Van Hulle gathered through these discussions with customers and designers started her quest to create conceptual design out of functional need. The production of "table for tools", a co-design of Katrien Van Hulle and Siegfried De Buck, was her first answer to this quest.

While designing and producing "table for tools", Katrien Van Hulle added material and material handling know how to functional need and conceptual design.

The success story of "table for tools", followed by the creation of "b-ar" and "b-artable" led to increased craftsmanship in production while successfully deploying a sound sales and marketing channel. First in Belgium, with England, Hong Kong, Australia, U.S.A, Israel following swiftly.

The natural evolution of Katrien Van Hulle's followed path combined with her passion for Belgian design brought her with Colect where she is today: attracting other gifted Belgian designers and propelling them successfully onto the international conceptual design scene.

siegfried de buck

mentor, jewel designer, silver smith, multi-media designer, ...

As one of the pioneers of contemporary silversmithing, Siegfried De Buck plays an important role in the development of the silversmith's trade in Belgium. His creations range from jewelry to tools for daily use such as walking sticks, teapots or table tools.

A strong personal artistic vision and excellence of workmanship are characteristic of his work. Technique and elegance are put on the forefront.

His creations show both a very personal way of expression and a thorough knowledge of material and technique. The result is an oeuvre which shows strong personality and artistic talent.

Siegfried De Buck is particularly attentive to materials and he likes to exploit their different features. The combination of different substances, particularly gold with non-precious materials is distinctive of his work.

According to Siegfried De Buck, the perfection of the silversmith reveals itself in the end product. He therefore always assumes full responsibility for both design and realization of his creations. His technical expertise, willingness to explore materials and desire to look for new possibilities led to many inventive creations such as "table for tools".

One of these new techniques was the invention of a new welding technique, TIG, now widely used in the silversmith profession.
